ANNUAL CONFERENCE IN ITS BE-M HALF HELD IN RICHMOND.

v. Montague Welcomes the Delegates and Fresident Robert C. Ogden Speaks on the Scope of the Movement and the Work That Is Being Accomplished.

RECHMOND, Va., April 22.—The Conference on Education in the South was opened here to-day and attracted general attention. The audience that filled the Academy of Music to-night was one of the most brilliant that ever assembled in this city.

The first session of the conference was held for organization at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. Robert C. Ogden, president of the association, named Walter H. Page New York, W. H. Baldwin of New York, Dr. C. F. Nesery of North Carolina, Edgar Gardner Murphy of Alabama and E. C. Branson of Georgia, as a committee to recommend officers for the year.

The report of the committee was presented by Dr. Page to the effect that the present fficials of the conference hold over through the conference and that the committee be permitted to make its nominations on he permitted to make its nominations on Friday morning, and that the officers selected then hold over through the next conference. This was adopted.

President Ogden presented invitations for the next meeting of the conference. He read a telegram from the University of Alabama, in which that institution said that it joined with Montgomery in inviting the conference to meet in Montgomery next year. The invitation of Montgomery was presented by Dr. Baldwin of that city. He brought with him invitations from the Governor of Alabama, the State Department of Education, the Mayor and Council of Montgomery and other bodies representing the people of Montgomery and other bodies representing the people Addresses urging the acceptance of the invitation were made by Joseph R. Graham of Talladega, Ala., who assured the body that the Legislature of the State would certainly unite in the invitation when it convened in the fall, and Dr. E. A. Adderman of New Orleans. President Ogden said that other invitations were to be received, and the matter was referred to the executive committee.

coived, and the matter was referred to the executive committee.

Mr. Ogden presided again at the night meeting and introduced Gov. Montague to the audience, remarking that it appeared strange that he should come from New York to introduce Virginia's Governor to a Bichmond audience, but he reminded them that representatives were present from all over the country and that it was a meeting of united interests with a single purpose. Gov. Montague's address elicited much applause. The unity of the country, as examplified in this movement, was pictured, and the brotherhood of the States was praised in glowing terms.

Mr. Ogden's response, giving details of the work of the Conference on Southern Education was listened to with close interest. He said:

In the atmosphere of a common human appraisable the Conference for Montague and the conference and the conference for Montague and the conference and the

Largette He said:

In the atmosphere of a common human sympathy the Conference for Education in the South lives and moves and has its being. Local taxation for education has the sanction of law in many States. Negro education is recognized as a part of the public education is recognized as a part of the public educational system in every State, both South and North. The one all-controlling fact before the minds of the fathers of the conference was the appalling need of an educational awakening in the rural South. Who that heard will ever forget the graphic utterances of Dr. Curry and President Wilson of Washington and Lee University, in which, with words hot from well-furnished minds and glowing hearts, they reviewed the causes of educational backwardness and pictured the then existing need.

I wish to demonstrate that the conference, by apparently following a negative course, is doing its noblest best toward securing positive results, achieving its greatest resolves without resolutions; by ignoring small details and eliminating lesser and petty influences, leaving the larger life of principle and aspiration freedom for growth and development.

The Southern Education Board carries.

and aspiration freedom for growth and development.

The Southern Education Board carries on a crusade for education. Its organization is comprehensive and actively covers the larger part of the country from the Potomac to the Rio Grande, from the Ohio to the Gulf. Its large expenses are privately defrayed. The General Education Board administers such funds as may come to it for the assistance of education. At the office of the General Education Board in New York, under the direction of Dr. Buttrick, a vast amount of information is being accumulated and thoulated concerning schools and educational inmitutions in the various States covered by the operations of the boards. From the Bureau of Information under the direction of Dr. Dabney, at Knoxville, Tenn., a great mass of popular and statistical literature mass of popular and statistical literature has been circulated to the new-paper press and to individuals. and to individuals. Assistance has been extended to various schools and institutions, divided nearly equally between the races.

Various summer schools for teachers have been encouraged and assisted, none entirely supported. Certain counties in several states have been encouraged to improve the public schools by subscription and local taxation by the dunlication of funds thus raised by the General Education Board. State conferences of county superintendents of education have been held, with highly satisfactory results, in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina. Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Florida and Louisiana. Others will follow, and probably the usefulness of the system will warrant its continuance.

It is also needful to remember that the consence is essentially in control of the Southern dessites, and that such Northern official research of the conference, all the members of the Campaign Committee, composed of the several district and bureau directors, of the Southern Education Board are residents of Southern Education Southern Education Board are residents of Southern Education Southern Education Southern Education Southern Education Southern Education forms of activity.

Oreditors Lay Claim to the Unfink Galveston-Reorganization Plans. RECEMOND, Va., April 22.-James N. Boyd, L. T. Myers, receivers, and J. Jordan Loak, counsel for the William R. Trigg Shipbuilding Company, left last night for New York to confer with J. J. Hoadley relative to the bankruptcy proceedings begun yesterday and the reorganization plan which has been under way for some

The attorneys for the lien dreditors have created a stir in Government circles by laying claim in the United States Court to the part completed cruiser Galveston and the newly finished revenue cutter Mohawk as part of the assets of the Trigg company. The Solicitor of the Treasury company. The Solicitor of the Treasury telegraphed United States District Attorney L. L. Lewis to-day to take immediate steps to have the Mohawk completed by the receivers. A troublesome legal question is involved. The Government is withholding a large percentage of the amount due for the construction.

Washington, April 22.—Assistant Secretary of the Navy Darling has recommended to Secretary Moody that the contract for building the cruiser Galveston be forfeited and the vessel finished by the Government. The Galveston is under construction by the William R. Trigg company of Richmond, Va., which recently went into the hands of a receiver. The work on her is far behind, and Mr. Darling believes that time will be wasted by permitting the receiver to attempt to finish her.

An effort is being made to prevent the acceptance of Mr. Darling's recommendation on the ground that the Trigg plant is to be sold and rejuvenated and that the withdrawal of the Galveston would injure the prospects of the new concern. The Galveston is to be a protected cruiser of $1,000 tons.

SHIPS WE BUILD COST MORE. Tariff, With No Subsidy, Is What's the Matter, Says a St.lpbullder.

Despatches from Richmond, Va., yesterday said that creditors of the Trigg Shipbuilding Company had instituted proceedings to put the company through in-voluntary bankruptcy. The troubles of the Trigg company, coming so closely on the heels of the practical reorganization of the Cramps of Philadelphia has led some persons to wonder what is the matter with the shipbuilding industry of the United States. An officer of one of the large shipbuilding companies made the following statement yesterday afternoon:

"The trouble with the shipbuilding industry in this country is that we cannot compete with conditions obtaining on the other side of the ocean. Most of the mateother side of the ocean. Most of the materials which we put into ships on this side are protected by tariff schedules. Further than that, our labor costs us a very great deal more than it costs the builders of ships on the other side. For the sake of comparison, I may tell you, that, if a ship could be built for £50,000 on the other side, it would cost just about $500,000 to build it here. The result is that people in this country who want ships prefer to buy them where they can buy them the cheapest.

I am as good a Republican as you can find in a day's run, but I want to say that the Republican party has repudiated every find in a day's run, but I want to say that the Republican party has repudiated every pledge it made regarding assistance to shipbuilding in the United States. The Ship Subsidy Bill seems to be a dead one. Had Congress passed that measure, you wouldn't have heard anything about shipbuilding companies going into bankruptcy and all that sort of thing. I would like to take a hopeful view of things, but when I look the situation in the face I'm bound to conclude that the shipbuilding industry in this country will be a lot worse before it is better."

BOILER SQUAD COP ACCUSED Of Selling Fraudulent Certificates to Fagineers for $100 Each.

Policeman George Baker, who for several years has been connected with the boiler inspection squad of the Police Department, was arrested yesterday afternoon, charged with violating section 94 of the Penal Code by altering public records in issuing a Jan. 23 to John Miller of 1123 Intervale avenue, The Bronx. The certificate which Miller got was originally issued in June, 88, to John Muller, and in order to make the names correspond it was necessary to change the record in three books. It is alleged that Miller paid Baker $100 for the certificate. Another certificate irregularly issued which, it is asserted, has been traced to Baker, was found in the possession of John Verry, an engineer employed by a firm of subway contractors. Verry said that he also paid $100 for his certificate.

Both Miller and Verry were attested.

Both Miller and Verry were arrested Both Miller as Baker. All three were at the same time as Baker. held for examination on Friday afternoon by Magistrate Mayo in the Tombs police

An investigation of the records of the boiler squad is being made.

Chief Inspector Cortright, ex-Chief of Police John McCullagh and Gen. George Moore Smith, who was a police commissioner under Mayor Strong's administration, were the only witnesses called. All testified as to the good character of the defendant, who, they said, performed his duties in an efficient manner.

Collecting Farmers' Taxes by Mati. LOGANSPORT, Ind., April 22.-Taxes are being collected by a new method in this county. Since the rural mail routes were established County Treasurer Obenchain established County Treasurer Openchain has mailed notices to farmers along the rural carriers' routes calling attention to taxes due and requesting that the debtors procure money orders from the rural carriers. The plan is proving successful, many farmers availing themselves of the opportunity of paying taxes without driving to town in the busy spring season. It is estimated that about $5,000 daily is collected in this way.

For More Pusheart Markets. Street Cleaning Commissioner Woodbury said yesterday that the new fish market had proved so successful that he proposed opening markets for pushcart men who sell other things than foodstuffs. The new fish market takes up only a small part of the ground cleared for the approach to the Williamsburg Bridge, and Major Woodbury thinks that by using the rest of this space the streets on the East Side could be cleared.

TESTIMONY BY M. E. OCONNOR OF BROOKLYN.

Indicates That Kent Had the Razer When the Door Was Broken Open and That Miss Dingle Was Dead—Letters That Show He Incited the Girl to Suicide

ROCHESTER, April 22.-Michael E. O'Conor, a contractor of Willoughby avenue, Brooklyn, and a prominent Democratic politician of that borough, furnished a nsation when he took the stand in the rial of Dr. Kent to-day.

"Did Miss Dingle have a razor in he hand when you broke into the room asked Lawyer George Raines of Mr

"I am positive she did not have the rasor," said the witness.

If Mr. O'Connor is correct in his recol otion, the outlook is darker for Kent since Miss Dingle was dead when the door was broken in and Kent was alive.

The defence could not alter the testimon of Mr. O'Conner, who also declared that the bellboy cried out, as they were leaving the room: "See, he has a razor in his hand."
The bellboy two weeks ago said that he remarked on that occasion: "She has a razor in her hand." Mr. O'Connor denies this. He persists that the pronoun "he" was used and the dead girl's hand held no

Mr. O'Connor was stopping at the Whit-comb House on the night of the tragedy and occupied a room adjoining that of Miss Dingle and Dr. Kent. He told a dramatic story of the affair. While Policeman Sellinger was on the stand, District Attorney Warren suddenly drew out of a sealed packet a number of letters which he asked the officer to identify. He scanned these carefully and said they were some that they had found in the room occupied by the couple. One of the letters was to "The Coroner of Rochester," and a short one is directed to Dr. Acheson of this city. It reads: and occupied a room adjoining that of

Dear Jack: It is all up, old boy. She refused to live, and I could not live without her, and we die together; and, old boy, we love you and may God protect and care for you, for we love you. Jood-by. Jack. To his father, A. Dorr Kent, the physician

Trote this:

DEAR PA: Please, for God's sake, if not ours, bury us together in Forest Lawn, for tis our request, as we are all in all together. Foreive and forget.

In a letter addressed to her sister Eva, the young nurse gives some inkling of the causes of her death. She mentions Dr. George H. Grant, to whom she was engaged:

My Darling Sisters and Brothers:
Don't blame Dr. Kent. I want to die. I have suffered all the agonies of hell within the last month. Dr. Grant has been the commencement. I hope he will lead a better life. I love another, though all I want him to do is lead a better, more noble life. I am about to die and God forgive me. I love and am willing to enter eternity with the one I adore. I love one who has been true and never acted as one would expect of a sporting man. I ask all to forgive me and forget. I love Lee Kent and I know he respects me at least. I care not to live, for my condition is such that I must give up.
With all my love and respect, remember me as

ETHEL BLANCHE DINGLE.

Miss Dingle wrote this note to Dr. Lillian

Buffalo:

DEAR RANDALL: You are the principal cause of my death. I love my profession and this has told me my error, and my family are crazed. I have no more to say. I love Dr. Kent and Grant has ruined me. Goodby forever. I am ever yours most faithfully.

E. B. Dingle.

Dr. Kent also wrote to Dr. Randall, "I forgive you for causing this awful death
by your tongue."

A longer letter was written by Kent to his father in which he itemized his debts and disposed of his different effects, and adds:

Well, it's all up with Uncle Dudley and was a prearranged affair. I have seen it coming for a month or so, but probably would never have happened if it had not been for Dr. Randall. May she ever suffer the torments of hell, and tell her so for me, for it was she who exposed Ethel and I to her sister. Pa, I die happy, for I am beside the girl I love and who has been true to me through thick and thin, and don't think ill of her, for all that has happened is due to me, and I alone. If my Syracuse checkbooks had only been home things would have changed, for I could have closed the mouths

The letters, if they cannot be disproved, will convict Dr. Kent of inciting the girl to suicide, while O'Connor's evidence is expected by the prosecution to show that Dr. Kent in a state of frenzy killed her after she repented of her decision.

HOW DID IT GROW FROM $5,825? ASKS BUTTON MAN.

Anyhow, His Nephew, Who Collected the $19,000, is Accused of Grand Larceny —Kings County Democratic Managers of 1901 Might Like an Explanation.

Meyer R. Bimberg of 3 West 120th street who was recently associated in business with his uncle, Charles Rimberg, widely known as "Bim the Button Man," was arraigned yesterday before Magistrate O'Reilly in the Adams street court in Brooklyn on a charge of grand larceny, his unc being the complainant.

The Kings County Democratic General

Committee has a special interest in the case as the squabble between the "Button Man and his nephew is the outgrowth of the payment of the bills for 100,000 lithographs of Edward M. Shepard as candidate for Mayor, and for other printing. The bills have long been disposed of, but the develhave long been disposed of, but the developments on which the larceny charge is based came to the surface only recently when the Rimbergs dissolved partnership.

Although the "Button Man" himself only sent in bills to the committee aggregating $5,825, the duly audited bills which finally were presented to Treasurer Arthur C. Salmon for payment footed up $10,840.

After some objection was made by Mr. Salmon to the size of the hills the $40 odd dollars were stricken out and a check for $10,000 was given to Meyer R. Bimberg.

The "Button Man" now says that all he received from his nephew was $3,615.

Meyer R. Bimberg entered a plea of not guilty and furnished $2,500 bonds pending his examination next Wednesday. He said:

"This matter is simply a family fight. It is jealousy pure and simple over my organization of a rival company. If I got $10,000 from the Democratic Committee I was entitled to it. My negotiations with the committee were not confined to my uncle's business with that body. This the committee were not confined to my uncle's business with that body. This matter will come out all right."
